Reflection

For my primary source I wanted to use the mask concept again where the thing that will be a symbol for this time is where I draw my primary source. I wanted to use what us Americans had to go through during 2020 which includes the massive shut down, social distancing, mask mandates, and school being completely online for most of the time. At the bottom of the mask I wanted to include the biggest American events during the times which includes the Black Lives Matter protests and equal rights being a major talking point; also, I wanted the 2020 election to be represented by a big vote sticker. In the middle are other major events that happened in America during 2020 including Trump being impeached, Kobe Bryant's death, Joe Biden winning the presidential election, and sports being canceled for a bit which resulted in the NBA bubble.

“My Primary Source” 2020. I wanted to show what it was like for me and every other American living in Covid America. I created the mask drawing to show the current events happening in 2020 from the BLM protests to Biden winning the elections to the national shut down that felt like it lasted an eternity. The mask reveals that living with the mask represents way more than trying to stop the spread of the virus. It means standing up for what you believe in and trying to bring equality to this country where discrimination has been prevalent throughout it's creation. The mask also represents living throughout a pandemic being restricted from going to school, going to work, and going out with your friends and loved ones; and not just being restricted from breathing in fresh air. The mask art represents so much about the pandemic and America will come out stronger than ever.
