Dr. Todd Fiegel

Dr. Todd Fiegel, a native of Elkhorn, Wisconsin, is serving in his first year as Director of University Bands at the University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire, succeeding Dr. Donald S. George in that position. He was previously on the Faculties of the University of Montana and Idaho State University and served as Artist-in-Residence Conductor at the University of Missouri-Kansas City. He holds a doctorate in conducting from the University of Colorado, where he studied with Allan McMurray; his other degrees are from the University of Wisconsin, where he worked with H. Robert Reynolds. Dr. Fiegel is active as a clinician and guest conductor in both the United States and Canada, in which country he has conducted from westernmost Vancouver Island to the eastern coast of Newfoundland. Fiegel is also a serious devotee of film music, lecturing frequently on the subject and preparing articles for publication. He has conducted his own silent-film score Celluloid Tubas in well over a hundred performances coast to coast, and his thorough examination of Bernard Herrmann's landmark score for The Day the Earth Stood Still will appear in the premiere issue of The Journal of Film Music this spring.

The Bands at UWEC

The band area of the University of Wisconsin-Eau Claire comprises three concert bands and the Blugold Marching Band. The wind ensemble is designed to provide an opportunity for the accomplished wind and percussion musician to perform challenging music of various instrumentation and style. Utilizing the concept of one-person-per-part performance, original wind-band music from over three centuries calling for anywhere from seven to forty-seven players is performed. The wind ensemble was created this year by Dr. Todd Fiegel and the wind and percussion faculty. The symphony band is also designed, primarily, for the music major and carries on the tradition of excellence established by Dr. Donald S. George in his long tenure as UWEC Director of University Bands. It offers the accomplished musician an opportunity to perform the highest quality large-band repertoire. The university band provides an experience for the predominantly non-music major to continue his/her enjoyment with instrumental music, and as such, performs high-quality literature that does not demand the rigorous preparation expected of music majors. The Blugold Marching Band, open to all students regardless of major, regularly performs to high acclaim at home football games. Anyone desiring more information about the UWEC Bands should call the band office at (715) 836-4417.
